The 2013-2014 J. Harvey Young Lecture and Keynote Address at the Atlanta Graduate Student Conference in U.S. History

“Sanctifying Service: Spiritual Responses to Postindustrial Work”

Bethany Moreton is the author of To Serve God and Wal-Mart: The Making of Christian Free Enterprise (Harvard University Press, 2009), which won the 2010 Frederick Jackson Turner Prize for Best First Book in American History from the Organization of American Historians and the 2010 John Hope Franklin Award for the Best Book in American Studies from the American Studies Association. A Distinguished Lecturer for the Organization of American Historians, she was named the 2009 Emerging Scholar by the Institute for the Humanities at the University of Michigan and has been a visiting scholar at the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and the Harvard Divinity School. She has published multiple articles and chapters on the intersections between religion and economics and is a series editor for the Columbia University Press's Studies in the History of U.S. Capitalism. She is also a founding member of Freedom University, which offers free college-level instruction to qualified students banned from the university system of Georgia because of their immigration status.

Bethany Moreton
Assistant Professor of History University of Georgia

November 15, 2013 | 6pm | Emory Campus
Oxford Road Building | 3rd Floor Presentation Room Visitor parking is available in the Oxford Road deck. For directions and parking information, visit http://transportation.emory.edu/parking/visitors.html

For more information:
http://history.emory.edu/ATLGradConf ATLGradConference@gmail.com 404-727-6555

With generous support from the J. Harvey Young Lecture Series and History Department; Manuscripts, Archives, and Rare Book Library; Hightower Fund; Workshop in U.S. History; Graduate Division of Religion; American Studies Program; and African American Studies Department