Semester Description:

This course helps prepare graduate students in the history department for teaching at the college level. During the course of the semester, students will produce two polished syllabi, at least one of which will receive departmental consideration for teaching allocations in the coming year. Students will distinguish, compare, and appraise different modes of presenting and analyzing material in the classroom. They will engage teaching resources available here on Emory's campus. Finally, students will generate their own statement of teaching philosophy.
