Semester Description:

This course critically examines the field of Religious Studies (Religionsgeschichte or Religionswissenschaft) as a product of Western intellectual history. Two key questions that will be asked in this course are: How was the study of religions conceived as a science? And why did Religious Studies first develop in the West? Topics to be covered in our attempt to answer these questions will include: historicism and the philosophy of religion; linguistics, philology, and the History of Religions; imperialism, orientalism and Religious Studies; ideologies of origin and race; primitivism and the quest for authenticity; nationalism and the History of Religions; phenomenology and the problem of comparison; the “mystery” of the academic study of mysticism; traditionalism and perennialism; the influence of the History of Religions on religious movements in the Non-Western world.

Required Textbooks, Articles, and Resources (possibly subject to revision):

1. Taylor, Mark C. Ed., Critical Terms for Religious Studies
2. Kippenberg, Hans G., Discovering Religious History in the Modern Age
3. Arvidsson, Stefan, Aryan Idols: Indo-European Mythology as Ideology and Science
4. Wasserstrom, Steven M., Religion after Religion: Gershom Scholem, Mircea Eliade, and Henry Corbin at Eranos
5. Sedgwick, Mark, Against the Modern World: Traditionalism and the Secret Intellectual History of the Twentieth Century
Grading:

- Regular class attendance
- In-class presentations on assigned topics (30%)
- A written critical review of a theoretical work in Religious Studies (15 pages, 30%)
- A 20 to 25-page research paper on a theoretical problem in the History of Religions (40%)
